1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-2, 5, 7-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kuroiwa et al, U.S. Patent Application Publication No. 2001/0006866 in view of Nakamura et al, U.S. Patent No. 6,641,763. Kuroiwa et al discloses a multiaxial laminated nonwoven fabric comprising layers comprising tows. The tows correspond to the claimed multifilament yarns. The tows may comprise conjugate fibers having lower melting sheaths and higher melting cores and may be made from polyolefins. See paragraph 0025 and paragraph 0082. The different layers each comprise a plurality of the tows arranged in parallel with each other within each layer. The tows can comprise either the warp or the weft, depending on which layer they are in. See figures. The layers are laid at angles to each other which meets the limitations of claims 12-13. See paragraph 0036. Kuroiwa et al differs from the claimed invention because while Kuroiwa et al teaches employing polyolefins generally, it does not specifically teaches the claimed composite structure of the fibers. Nakamura teaches that it is known to form conjugate fibers having polyolefin as both the sheath and core. See examples. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have employed the particular conjugate fibers of Nakamura in the invention of Kuroiwa et al, motivated by their art recognized suitability for the intended purpose.

3. Applicant's arguments filed 8/30/07 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that the prior art reference do not, either separately or together, place into the possession of the public a non-woven base fabric which is free from adverse effects such as moisture-absorbing properties and voids, and which has superior properties including flexibility and light weight. However, none of these features are recited in the claims. Kuroiwa teaches the claimed structure and teaches employing bicomponent fibers which are made from polyolefins, and differs only in that it does not teach the particularly claimed bicomponent conjugate fibers. However, Nakamura does teach this feature and therefore the combination renders the claimed invention obvious for the reasons of record.

4. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
